"STOCK GET OUT?"

HANK PETRIE was a shiftless. This was accepted where he was known with an "amen." Hank's mind was active in spite of his great infirmity. It made him a philosopher, not a dreamer, but an earthly resident. This same mind of Hank's led him into various schemes. It made him cautious, the cautiousness that bred laziness and shiftlessness, for when the roof leaked he put a pan under the hole, instead of making the repairs. Some one suggested shingles. "Well, I'll tell you," he replied, "You see my ladder is old. The rounds are rotten, and I have a family to support. Suppose a round should break and I break my leg—who'd look after the old woman and the kids? Besides, the ladder is part of the garden fence, and as for putting the pan under the hole, why, that's no bother. If the old woman wants to use the pan, why, she can wait till it stops raining—a rest will do her good anyway. There's no use making a slave out of a woman because she's ambitious. Besides, on a rainy day a man can't do nothin' but mend harness anyway. My harness is borrowed. What's the good of mendin' a borrowed harness? No sooner a man gets it mended than the feller comes after it. I never knew it to fail."

HEN TURKEY ON HER NEST.

When every one else was planting potatoes Hank was wondering if it was going to be a dry summer or like the one they had nine years ago. And when Bill Gleason, with a boldness that he might have known would have stirred the very dregs of Hank's mental cup of reason, asked him why he didn't turn up a little ground and put in a few hills of potatoes, Hank tapped the bowl of his pipe and replied:

"What's the use? If it's a good year for potatoes most anybody will give me enough to carry me through the winter; if it's a bad year, why, they won't nobody have any." This closed the potato incident.

Hank was the possessor of an old bay mare. The feed was very poor in Hank's pasture. "Jennie knows every blade of grass in that pasture," said he, "and she's got every one timed when it will be long enough to eat again."

Squire Whipple had a fine piece of grass growing next above Hank's place. About dusk every evening the philosopher would slowly saunter down the road and inquire after the squire. He would spend a few minutes hanging over the fence and notice if the squire was preparing for bed, talk a few minutes and then go back home. Jennie, when it grew darker, would be led into the squire's meadow for her evening meal. Of course it wasn't long before the squire noticed that his meadow was fast becoming bald in spots and suspected Hank and Jennie from his lack of good pasture and Jennie from her unusual rotundity of person.

Becoming aware of the squire's suspicions, Hank devoted part of one evening to taking down part of the squire's fence and turning Fan, the squire's own horse, into the meadow. Next morning the squire was out early mending fence.

"Stock get out?" asked Hank. "Yes; last night old Fan got into the timothy," and then with just the slightest touch of sarcasm, he added, "It wouldn't be doin' any great harm if you'd patch up your fence a bit, Hank."

"Well, I guess old Fan wouldn't find any great pickin' over in my pasture," replied Hank with a low chuckle. This ended Jennie's nocturnal banquets, and she fell back into her observance of the tardy growth of grass in Hank's well cropped pasture. Hank lacked the ability to convert his peculiar mental talents into something of commercial value. It can perhaps be best illustrated by his method of woodchuck hunting. Hank was the possessor of a gun that had a recoil like a mountain howitzer. He was particularly friendly toward it, for he said there was a sort of sympathetic bond between them. "We both kick when we have to work," as he expressed it.

When the woodchuck fever was on he would shoulder the gun and start out. Sometimes he was successful and sometimes otherwise. When he brought one home he would skin it and tack the skin on the door of the barn. Then, when some admiring youngster would come along, Hank would give him the skin he had so carefully tanned to show him where there was another woodchuck. Some one asked Hank how he ever expected to make anything out of this kind of a deal.

"Well," replied Hank, "some time I'll find a hole with two in it." The proprietor of the hotel at the corners had advertised a turkey raffle the day before Thanksgiving. Hank went, took a few chances, but was not successful. He spent what money he had, and it occurred to him on the way home that it was going to be a pretty dull Thanksgiving without turkey. Just about this time the erratic squire's wonderful mentality asserted itself. He stopped Jennie about opposite the squire's place, climbed out of his wagon and went around behind the henhouse. In a few minutes he came back, got into his wagon and went on home. The next morning Hank appeared at the squire's.

"Been down to the henhouse yet, squire?"

"No, not yet. Why?"

"Well, last night when I was comin' home my turkey got excited, hopped out of the wagon, and before I could stop her she flew over the fence and

'LONG ABOUT THANKSGIVING

By EDGAR WELTON COOLEY

CONTENTED-LIKE, the stubble fields are stretching in the sun. Resting up and thinking of the work that they have done. And each rustling shock of fodder reaches forth a freckled hand To touch the robe of Plenty as she dances through the land. The corn that fills to gorging point the stuffed and groaning cribs Is spilling out their open mouths and dripping through their ribs. And the hay crammed in the barn lofts seems to raise the very roofs 'Long about Thanksgiving in the country!

HE squashes in the cellars give a grunt of honest pride. If you stoop and roll them over or punch them in the side. And the press from which the nectar of a thousand apples drips In an ecstasy of rapture smacks its cider-moistened lips. While the cabbages that dangle from the rafters overhead Keep a-nodding. "How-d'y-do, air!" to the pumpkins, blushing red. And the turnips and potatoes overflow their bulging bins 'Long about Thanksgiving in the country!

THE tune the brooks are singing is a melody that's sweet— A song of mills a-grinding of the endless flow of wheat. And the flour from the bolting a snowy river makes That flows into an ocean of bread and pies and cakes. While the honey that was gathered by a million hives of bees Feeds its rich and subtle fragrance to the halting, hungry breeze. And the glossy turkeys gobble to the chickens' lazy cluck 'Long about Thanksgiving in the country!

WHERE the Jerseys moo, contented-like, amid the fragrant hay The creamy milk keeps spissing in a coating kind of way. Till it overflows the buckets and runs in a hundred seas Of golden, glowing butter and luscious, yellow cheese. Oh, 'tis then a fellow chuckles and has peace for all the earth And his soul sings halleluiah as he loosens of his girth. And his thankful heart goes dancing to the smacking of his lips 'Long about Thanksgiving in the country!

The Two Goblins

By Hezekiah Butterworth

THERE comes a proud day in Indian summer to an old farm, a day of real importance. It is when the hen turkey returns to the home roofs and dooryard trees from the fields, bringing her flock with her.

This holiday parade takes place near "killing time." She approaches the farmstead slowly and cautiously, and if strutting is done the cock turkey does it in the sunny air. The fire of the sun seems falling in showers in those days. The air is indeed as bright as it used to be in summer time, but not quite so warm. The air is still and seems hollow, and occasionally a nervous wind from the north rustles the russet leaves.

That night she roosts her flock on the ridgepole of the cockloft or in one of the dooryard trees. The sun and moon seem the same on that glorious day. The moon comes up over the sea like a night sun, golden and red, and the night turns into another day, not quite so warm as the sun days, but often very warm.

It was very warm on the night of which I have a story to tell. The place was a shipyard country house on the North river, where a fleet of ships had been built, and among them the Columbia, which was a wonder. It was that ship, commanded by Captain Kendrick, that discovered the Columbia river.

There had gone to work in that fable, and gave a snore and was in oblivion. The turkeys were fattening, and when the great sun-moon came up over the sea they became uncomfortable, and two young goblins put their heads down to look for a more easy adjustment, and there it was, handy as it could be—Mr. Ruggles' two feet and ample supports.

One of them stepped down very carefully and lighted upon Mr. Ruggles' leg, just above the foot, and gave a note of satisfaction. The other followed the example. Mr. Ruggles slept on, and the two goblins were soon asleep perched on his two legs and nestled close to his feet.

Of what Mr. Ruggles dreamed we cannot be sure, but early in the morning he thought he heard some one say, "Mr. Ruggles, Mr. Ruggles!"

"Hey?"

The same voice said in a tone of surprise, "Mr. Ruggles."

His personality easily changed the "to" sound into "tu."

Then another voice said in a tone of equal surprise, "Mr. Ruggles."

And Mr. Ruggles started and began to draw in his legs, when two goblins flew into the air. In relating this adventure he was asked how he knew that they were goblins.

"Because they both said so, all of themselves," said he. "But they found that they could not carry me away. I was too much for them. What had I ever done to be visited by two evil spirits like that?"

Mr. Ruggles rose and put his head out of the window. He saw two turkeys on the ground. One of them looked up to the ridgepole and said, "Mr. Ruggles," or what sounded like it to suggestions of inner consciousness.

"They both appeared greatly surprised," said Mr. Ruggles. "They asked the same question as the goblins, only they clipped their words. I wonder if they saw the goblins fly away. I will never put my two feet out of the window again."

And ever afterward the careful man swung high his broadax by day and gathered up his feet at night after the manner of his fathers.

Lincoln and Thanksgiving

By J. A. EDGERTON

[Copyright, 1905, by J. A. Edgerton.]

LINCOLN GIVING THANKS.

LIKE so many other good things, Thanksgiving day in America originated with the Puritans. But in its present form as a national holiday it really owes its existence to Abraham Lincoln. The annual designation by the president of the last Thursday in November for such observance was started by him in 1863, and there has since been no break in the yearly Thanksgiving proclamations since that date.

The first Lincoln proclamation appointing a day for divine supplication was dated Aug. 12, 1861. It designated the last Thursday in September as "a day of humiliation, prayer and fasting." Things did not look especially bright for the northern arms just then. The memory of Bull Run was still fresh. Perhaps to this fact may be ascribed the pathetic wording of the document:

Whereas, When our own beloved country, once, by the blessing of God, united, prosperous and happy, is now afflicted with faction and civil war, it is peculiarly fit for us to recognize the hand of God in this terrible visitation and in sorrowful remembrance of our own faults and crimes as a nation and as individuals to humble ourselves before him and to pray for his mercy.

Thousands of individuals throughout the land refrained from food and prayed for the nation's salvation. The regular Thanksgiving in November, 1861, was a rather subdued occasion and there was no presidential proclamation. By the following spring, however, the clouds had begun to lift. Forts Henry and Donelson had been captured and Shiloh had been fought. So on the 10th of April Lincoln requested that the people give thanks because "it has pleased Almighty God to vouchsafe signal victories to the land and naval forces."

Thanksgiving day proper in November of 1862 was observed much as it had been the year previous and no proclamation accompanied it.

The momentous year of 1863 saw three such proclamations, however. The first was dated March 30 and designated April 30 as a day of fasting and prayer. In this rather noteworthy document occurs the significant statement, "But we have forgotten God."

By July 15 Vicksburg had opened the Mississippi, and Gettysburg had ended the fear of invasion, so on that day another proclamation was issued, reciting that God had heard the prayers of the people and had vouchsafed "victories on land and sea so signal and so effective" as to promise ultimate peace. So Thursday, Aug. 6, was set apart as a day for national thanksgiving.

On Oct. 3 came the first of Lincoln's regular Thanksgiving day proclamations. It recites the brighter outlook for the Union, dwells lovingly on the continued growth of the nation despite its tribulations, gratefully points to the fact that other nations have not been drawn into the struggle, and says, "No human counsel hath devised nor hath any mortal hand worked out these great things," so the last Thursday in November is set apart as "a day of thanksgiving and praise."

July 7, 1864, by direction of congress, President Lincoln designated the first Thursday of August "as a day of national humiliation and prayer." Oct. 20 of the same year saw the issuance of Lincoln's second and last regular Thanksgiving proclamation. Before Thanksgiving day arrived it was known that Lincoln, by an overwhelming majority, had been chosen to succeed himself. The war was wearing to a close, and the occasion was auspicious.

There's Something to Be Thankful For

THAR'S sumthin' to be thankful fur, no matter how things go— In summer time fur fruit an' flowers, in winter time fur snow. Thar's sumthin' sort o' pleasant happens to us every day. An' life's a perfect picnic ef we look at it that way.

Thar's always sumthin' putty fur our weary eyes. The play o' the sunst or the blossoms on the tree— An' always sumthin' tuncful fur our tired ears to hear— The children's voices chirpin' or the robin's music clear.

Thar's always sumthin' ready fur our villin' hands to do— Sum hahn' steps to help along, sum job to carry through— No chance to be a-ickin' when our fast are busy goin'.

No time fur idle growin' when we're plannin' seed an' sowin'.

Thar's sumthin' to be thankful fur, no matter how things go— No end to all our blessin's ef we only count 'em so.

An' even ef you're out o' sorts, or sick, or sad, or pore,

Jest thank the Lord you're livin' ef you can't do nothin' more.

HOW TO COOK A TURKEY.

The Recipe of a Famous New York Chef

A chef who has for many years presided over the cuisine of one of New York city's best hotels gives this recipe for preparing and cooking the Thanksgiving turkey:

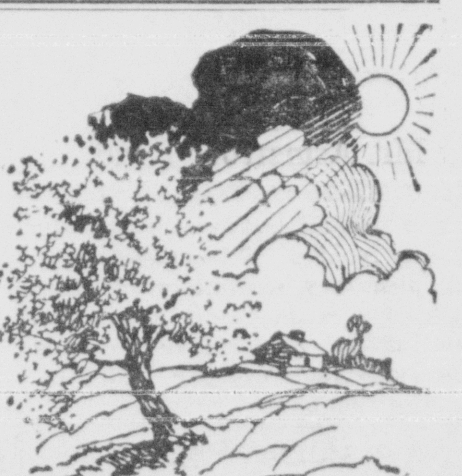

"Slit the neck of the turkey from the back of the head down its whole length and with the fingers separate the skin from it. Cut the skin a little above the middle and pull apart, then cut the neck off at the base. That will leave the skin intact for further use."

"Take the intestines out through an incision in the abdomen, but first take out the crop by inserting the finger where you have cut the neck off. Loosen the strings, or pipes, inside and pull them easily, then the whole crop will come out intact. Wash well, and the turkey will be ready for stuffing."

"For the stuffing soak a small stale loaf of bread in cold water and when soft squeeze all the water out; place in a bowl, add salt, pepper, thyme or sage or both; fry one onion chopped fine in four ounces of butter and a little ham, bacon or salt pork; cut fine, add a whole egg and mix well. Stuff the crop or wishbone part thoroughly and fasten the skin over it on the back of the turkey with a skewer or sew it; the rest put inside. Bake the turkey in a hot oven and cook about ninety minutes."

Making the Proclamation.

There is a good deal of form and ceremony about the making of the Thanksgiving proclamation. It is composed by the president himself and in most instances written out in his own hand. When this is done the document goes to the state department, where it is carefully copied in ornamental writing that is almost like engraving on the official blue paper of that department. The next thing needed on the document is the great seal of the government. This seal is kept by the clerk of pardons and commissions, and it is very carefully guarded under lock and key. Its keeper will not produce it without a special warrant signed by the president, and an impression of the seal is quite a ceremony in itself. When the proclamation has been thus duly signed and sealed many copies are made of it by clerks, and one is sent to the governor of every state in the Union. It is also given out then to the press agents, who telegraph it all over the United States. Each governor, as he receives it, issues one himself for his state.

THURSDAY NOV. 30, 1905.

THE REPUBLICAN is issued at noon today as is our custom on Thanksgiving day.

THE change of temperature in the last twenty-four hours has been very decided and today we are given our first real taste of winter.

IT is apparent to the public that President Roosevelt is very much in earnest about railroad rate regulation and expects congress to act.

STOP and contemplate the meaning and purpose of Thanksgiving day. All of us have a tendency to overlook the real significance of the day. Too many do not observe the day as one of thanksgiving at all. The spirit and purpose of the day are lost sight of by many people who do not think of offering up a prayer of thanksgiving for the manifold blessings enjoyed. Our nation is a favored nation and our people are a favored people. Our own state and our own community are abundantly blessed. We have every reason to observe Thanksgiving day in its true meaning.

Good Work.

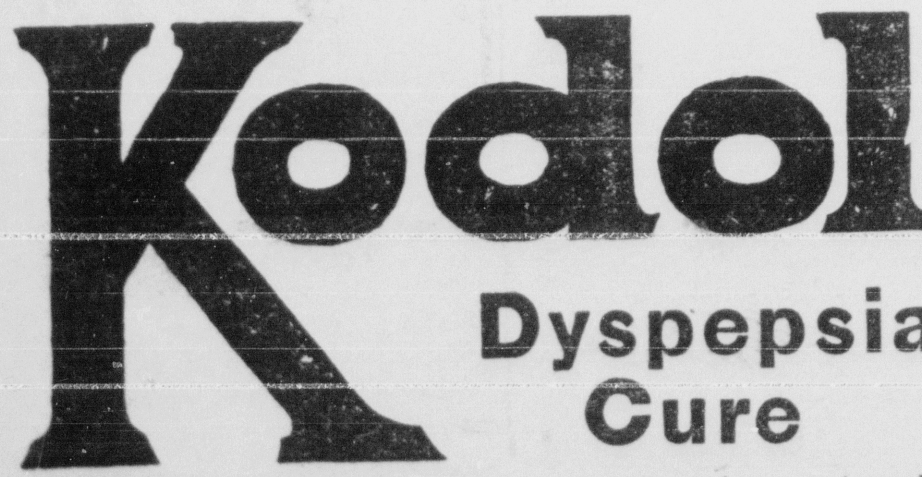

It is quite a commendable fact that the several churches of the city are today making an unusual effort to supply the wants of the poor here. This work from the Baptist church is being carried on by the Ladies' Aid Society. The ladies of the Methodist church are also doing charity work. The Light Bearers Mission Band of the Presbyterian church sent out their delegation of helpers this morning. This is their fourth year for this kind of work and they find it most enjoyable as anyone will who takes it up.

Mr. Armstrong Dead.

Rev. Harley Jackson and family went to Bedford last evening to attend a family reunion. When they reached that place they received word of the death of Mrs. Jackson's father, Mr. Ira Armstrong, of Springfield. He was ninety-one years old. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson went on to Springfield.

Guinea Pig.

In the Cox Pharmacy window today is a whole family of guinea pigs that are attracting a great deal of attention.

TRAIN WRECKERS

Were Foiled by Timely Discovery at Curve Near Upton.

TIE ACROSS THE TRACK

Obstruction Placed With Criminal Intent Discovered a Few Minutes Before Train Dashes Past.

South-bound Florida Flyer Would Have Been Wrecked But For Prompt Action.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Nov. 30.—A disastrous wreck and probable holdup was narrowly averted in the cut on the Louisville & Nashville railroad near Upton, Ind. Charles and Jake Sturms, two farmers, were returning to their homes from a neighbor's house about 8 o'clock at night, and while walking on the railroad track in a westerly direction toward Upton, found a large cross tie securely braced and fastened across the track. The two men were carrying a lantern and stopped and removed the tie and in ten or fifteen minutes the fast south-bound Florida flyer, with a large number of passengers, came thundering along.

The tie was found across the track on the curve near the place where two freight trains came together last summer. This spot has given the L. & N. officials more trouble than any other part of the road, and on account of its favorable surroundings and distance from aid, is an ideal place for holdups and wrecks.

WILD TALE OF THE HILLS

Story of Orange County Lynching Was Not Based Upon Fact.

Paoli, Ind., Nov. 30.—After making a thorough investigation of the report sent out to the newspapers that John Scott, negro, had been chased down and shot by the friends of John Waltz, foreman of a railway construction gang, who had been fatally shot by Scott, Sheriff Maris pronounced the report false and denounced the correspondence who had imposed on the newspapers. It was said that Scott had been killed near West Baden.

Two suspects are under arrest at Jasper and two at Huntington, and men will be sent from the railway camp to see if either of them is Scott. Mr. Waltz remains in a critical condition.

Elevators Overflowing With Corn.

Rushville, Ind., Nov. 30.—On account of a shortage in freight cars to haul away the corn now on hand, the elevators of Reed & Son, Hall & Ball and Brown & Riley of this place have announced they will receive no more corn until further notice. The elevators at Sexton, Mays station, Milroy, Arlington and Glenwood are all packed to their fullest capacity and are unable to receive any more. This is the first time in the history of Rush county that there has been such a situation.

Albion Swept by Fire.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 30.—The Atwood buggy factory at Albion burned. The fire started from a tank of tar exploding on an office stove. All the papers and books were burned and the plant was entirely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $30,000, partly insured. A big grain elevator on the B. & O. tracks near the factory was partly burned. The stockyards were destroyed and many hogs were cremated. The loss on the elevator and the stockyards is estimated at $18,000.

Indiana Red Cross Society.

Indianapolis, Nov. 30.—The first annual meeting of the Indiana branch of the National Red Cross society was held here. The Indiana branch was organized in June. All the officers elected at that time were re-elected, as follows: Noble C. Butler, president; William Lowe Bryan, vice president; Mrs. William A. Woods, secretary, and George T. Porter treasurer.

Child Fatally Burned.

Brownstown, Ind., Nov. 30.—The four-year-old child of Charles Ash, a farmer living a few miles west of this place, was burned to death when her clothes caught fire from a pile of burning leaves which her seven-year-old sister had fired while they were playing in the yard.

Caught on the Track.

Bunker Hill, Ind., Nov. 30.—Riley White, nineteen years old, while working on a section of the Indiana Union Traction company's lines near this place, was struck by a work train and received injuries from which he died. White's home was in Orestes.

Theory of the Defense.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 30.—The defense in the case of John James, charged with killing Panel Beckner, put witnesses on the stand with the purpose of proving that Beckner shot himself accidentally or with suicidal intent. The state has rested.

Martinsville, Ind., Nov. 30.—

Lou Hacker and Lewis Feltman of Paragon, shot at each other, but did no serious damage. Hacker used a revolver and Feltman a shotgun. It is said two shot pierced one of Hacker's ears.

Meriwether Tells His Tale.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 30.—Midshipman Minor Meriwether told his story of the first fight between him and Midshipman James R. Branch, Jr., which was followed by the death of Branch. He was testifying in his own behalf before the courtmartial which is trying him on charges that embraced manslaughter in connection with the death of Branch. When he left the witness stand the defense rested. It is expected that argument of counsel will be concluded and the case given to the court on Friday.

The first page shows an entirely New Map of Ohio; the most beautiful and exact ever printed. In bringing this Map up to date, all new towns are located, all Electric and Traction Railroads are shown, all Rural Mail Routes, and portraits of all the Governors.

On other pages of this Magnificent Chart are Maps of the United States with portraits of all the Presidents.

Map of Panama showing Canal zone, with data relative to the great Ship Canal, now being built by the United States, one of the greatest enterprises ever attempted.

A topographical Map of the Russia Japanese War district with data and details of the two great Armies and Navies, battle fields, etc., including the last Naval battle in the straits of Korea.

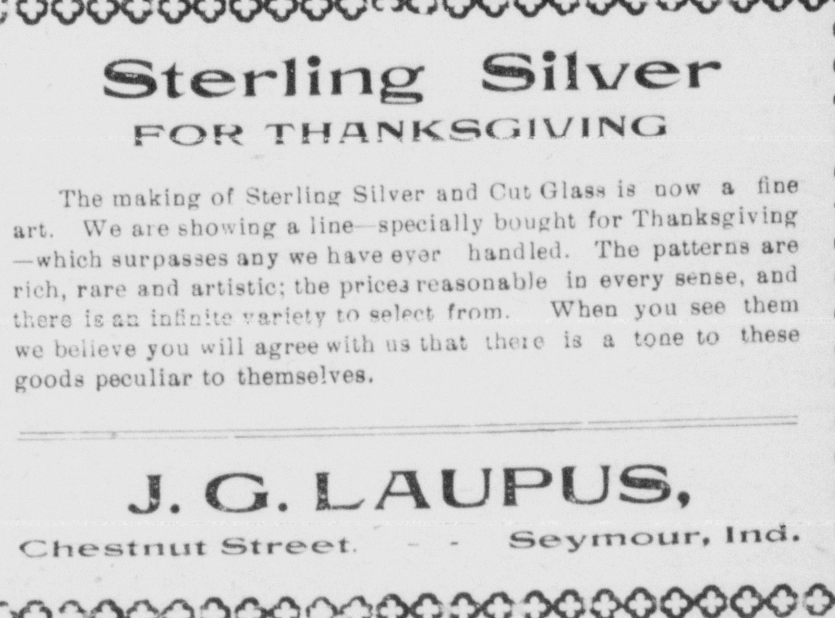

A Map of the World, with Names of Rulers. Coats of Arms. Flags of all Nations. Steamship Routes, with data and Statistics of great worth.

Other maps are the Philippine Islands, Hawaii, Alaska and Porto Rico, in all nine distinct maps.

An index will locate any point desired and is so simple a child can understand it. The Chart is new, correct and up to date, making it an invaluable educator, indispensable for the Home, School, Library, or College.

The selling price is $2.50, yet its worth is many times greater. The Enquirer Company is giving this chart free to subscribers of the weekly Enquirer who remit one dollar for a years subscription or for a renewal of old subscription. Agents can reap a rich harvest soliciting orders for this grand offer. Address,

BUCKET SHOPS

Dealt Hard Blow by Supreme Court.

The Indiana Supreme court, in an opinion handed down by Judge O. H. Montgomery, holds that bucket shops can not compel telegraph companies to deliver market quotations to them. The decision was in the case of the Hammond Elevator Company against the Western Union and the lower court was reversed.

The telegraph company pleaded that it obtained the quotations on an understanding that its customers should use them only in their private business and not in the operation of bucket shops. The elevator company was refused the quotations because it would not agree not to use them for bucket shop purposes.

The Supreme Court says that "the requirement of the Board of Trade that every applicant for its continuous quotations shall obligate himself not to use the same for illegal purposes is not an unlawful discrimination. Judge Montgomery, speaking for the Court, further said: "The mischief and evil consequences resulting to the state from the operation of the bucket shop are almost beyond computation. It assumes an air of legality and respectability and insidiously ensnares many victims before the public learns of the danger. Its nefarious practices are directly responsible for innumerable bankruptcies, defalcations, embezzlements, larcenies, forgeries and suicides. It ought to be outlawed by statute, as its existence is a menace to society and its operations are immoral, contrary to public policy and illegal."

* * * We are unwilling that the Board of Trade of Chicago should be a more considerate guardian of the morals of this state than its own Courts, and assuming the facts pleaded to be true, we unhesitatingly declare that no Court, under the guise of requiring a public service corporation to perform a public duty, should compel the performance of acts vitally necessary to the continued operation of a bucket shop."

Old Sect'on Foreman.

Robert Farrell, who has been with the O. & M., now the B. & O. S-W. railroad, since 1864, when he started to work for them at Black Oak, near Washington, Ind., Monday handed in his resignation. He resigns on account of his health. Since 1870 he has been section foreman for the road and in 1871 assisted in changing the gauge. Mr. Farrell is threatened with fever. His son is just recovering from a sprained hip. Monday Mrs. Farrell received word that her mother in Cincinnati, who is 87 years old, is dying.—Vincennes Commercial.

Funeral at 7 a. m.

The funeral of August F. Teckemeyer will be from the residence on east Third street at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. The remains will then be taken east at 9:15 for burial at Farmers Retreat in Dearborn county. The remains may be viewed by friends this afternoon.

Knights of Pythias.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh cure be sure to get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier New Zealand, Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. Out of the entire lists they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, cold, croup and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by C. W. Milhous.

WHEN YOU CATCH COLD

Do not take chances on it wearing away or experiment with some unknown preparation which may leave the bronchial tubes and lungs weakened and susceptible to attack from the germs of Pneumonia or Consumption.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. Contains no opiates.

It Saved His Life After the Doctor Said He Had Consumption.

W. R. Davis, Vissalia, California, writes: "There is no doubt but what Foley's Honey and Tar saved my life. I had an awful cough on my lungs and the doctor told me I had consumption. I commenced taking Foley's Honey and Tar and found relief from the first and three bottles cured me completely."

A Policeman's Testimony.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman, of Nashua, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs, and tried at least a half-dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world."

Three sizes—25c, 50c and $1.00. The 50-cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much. Refuse Substitutes.
